I Einleitung

Das vorliegende Findbuch erschliesst die Tonsammlung der deutsch-südafrikanischen Journalistin Ruth Weiss. Das Personenarchiv Ruth Weiss umfasst neben dieser Tonsammlung auch eine sehr umfangreiche Schriftgutsammlung, die bereits über ein eigenes Findbuch zugänglich ist.¹ Hinzu kommt ein kleiner Bildbestand mit rund 300 Fotografien, welcher über den Archivkatalog der BAB recherchierbar ist.²

Der Grossteil der Aufnahmen der Tonsammlung „Ruth Weiss“ bezieht sich auf das südliche Afrika und entstand im Rahmen ihrer journalistischen Arbeit. Der zeitliche Schwerpunkt liegt dabei auf den 1970er und 1980er Jahren. In dieser Zeit führte Ruth Weiss unzählige Interviews mit Vertreterinnen und Vertretern aus Wirtschaft, Politik und den Befreiungsbewegungen des südlichen Afrikas. Dazu zählen unter anderem Kenneth Kaunda, der erste Präsident Sambias, mit dem Ruth Weiss auch persönlich befreundet war, südafrikanische Persönlichkeiten wie Solly Smith, Oliver Tambo oder Trevor Huddleston, simbabwische Politiker wie Robert Mugabe und Abel Muzorewa, die südafrikanische Schriftstellerin Nadine Gordimer oder die deutsche SPD-Politikerin Marie Schlei.

Unter den Interviewpartnern befinden sich jedoch nicht nur namhafte, sondern auch unbekannte Menschen, die von ihrem Leben im südlichen Afrika der 1970er und 1980er Jahre erzählen. Neben Interviews enthält die Sammlung auch einige Mitschnitte von Pressekonferenzen, Parteitage und Unabhängigkeitsfeiern sowie von Musikaufnahmen und Lesungen. Die Aufnahmen dienten Ruth Weiss häufig als Grundlage für ihre Zeitungs- und Zeitschriftenartikel, für Bücher oder auch für Radiobeiträge.³

Schon früh interessierte sich Ruth Weiss für die Rolle der Frau sowohl in der Politik als auch in den Unabhängigkeits- und Anti-Apartheidsbewegungen. Sie interviewte Aktivistinnen und befragte sie zu ihrem politischen Engagement, ihren Zukunftsvisionen, ihrem Leben im Exil oder liess sie einfach aus ihrem Leben erzählen.

Ruth Weiss hatte als Journalistin die Möglichkeit an einigen wichtigen Konferenzen wie z.B. 1976 an der „Rhodesien Konferenz“ (Genf) oder den „Commonwealth Heads of Government Meetings“ (1981, 1985 und 1987) anwesend zu sein. Diese Chance nutzte sie, um persönlich mit Teilnehmenden zu sprechen und diese Gespräche auf Kassette aufzuzeichnen.

Die Interviews in ihren ganz eigenen Settings mit Hintergrundgeräuschen, Unterbrechungen etc. geben ein besonderes Zeitzeugnis ab. Durch diese Aspekte und natürlich durch die Stimmen der einzelnen Interviewpartner entstanden Momentaufnahmen, die sich so in Schrift nicht festhalten lassen und uns einen ganz eigenen Einblick in die Zeit der 70er und 80er Jahre des südlichen Afrikas bieten.

Ruth Weiss

Ruth Weiss (geb. 1924) ist eine bedeutende Journalistin zum südlichen Afrika. Nach der Flucht mit ihrer jüdischen Familie aus dem nationalsozialistischen Deutschland 1936 im Johannesburger Vorort Mayfair aufgewachsen, begann sie ihre berufliche Laufbahn zunächst als Buchhalterin, Assistentin im Versicherungswesen und im Buchhandel. In den fünfziger Jahren veröffentlichte Ruth Weiss unter dem Namen ihres Ehemannes Hans Weiss erste journalistische Artikel. Ab 1960 war sie dann vollberuflich als Wirtschaftsjournalistin tätig, anfänglich in Johannesburg (Newscheck, Financial Mail), ab 1966 in Salisbury (Redaktionsleitung Financial Mail). Aufgrund ihrer kritischen Berichterstattung wurde Ruth Weiss Ende der 1960er Jahre von der rhodesischen Regierung des Landes verwiesen. Auch in Südafrika stand ihr Name bis 1992 auf einer schwarzen Liste. Es folgten Tätigkeiten in London (Guardian, Investors Chronicle), ab 1971 in Lusaka (Times of Zambia, Financial Times), ab 1974 in Köln (Deutsche Welle), ab 1978 erneut in London (Link-up Radio Services) und ab 1981 in Simbabwe (u.a. für das Zimbabwe Institute for Southern Africa (ZISA)). In den 1990er Jahren zog Ruth Weiss zurück nach England und wandte sich vermehrt dem belletristischen Schreiben zu. So publizierte sie unter anderem eine Autobiographie, Kurzgeschichten und Romane.⁴ 2002 erfolgte der Umzug nach Lüdinghausen in Deutschland, wo sie seitdem lebt und schreibt.

Zur Überlieferung der Tonsammlung

Der Tonbestand „Ruth Weiss“, wie er in diesem Findbuch festgehalten ist, enthält nur einen kleinen Teil der unzähligen Tonaufnahmen, die Ruth Weiss während ihres Schaffens als Journalistin aufgezeichnet und gesammelt hat. So hat Ruth Weiss zwecks Mehrfachverwendung der Tonbänder viele Aufnahmen selbst durch Überspielen gelöscht, andere gelangten durch Austausch mit Berufskollegen und Radiostationen in andere Sammlungen oder gingen verloren. Einige Kassetten der Sammlung stammen aus der Zeit von Ruth Weiss bei Link-up Radioservices. Dieses Radioprojekt entstand Ende der 1970er Jahre in London aus einem losen Zusammenschluss von Journalistinnen und Journalisten. Im Zentrum des Projekts stand das Anliegen, ihren Berufskollegen im südlichen Afrika Tonaufnahmen frei zugänglich zu machen. Vermutlich kamen durch diesen Austausch auch einige Kassetten in ihre Sammlung, welche ursprünglich nicht von Ruth Weiss selbst stammen, so z.B. ein Interview von Gisela Albrecht 1979 mit der bekannten Schriftstellerin Bessie Head.

Ruth Weiss übergab den Basler Afrika Bibliographien – zusammen mit ihrer Schrift- und Bildsammlung – in den vergangenen Jahren rund 180 Tonträger. Da diese aus konservatorischen Gründen vor der Digitalisierung nicht angehört werden konnten, wurden sie anhand der Umschlagsbeschriftung 2011 inventarisiert.

Im Januar 2012 konnten diese Originalbänder der schweizerischen Nationalphonothek zur Digitalisierung übergeben werden. Dies mit grosszügiger finanzieller Unterstützung des Vereins Memoriav, welcher sich für die Erhaltung und die Erschliessung des schweizerischen audiovisuellen Kulturgutes einsetzt. Neben den Originaltonträgern existieren nun Kopien in hoher Auflösung im WAV-Format für die Langzeitarchivierung sowie Arbeitskopien im MP3-Format.

Vier Kassetten konnten auf Grund ihres schlechten Zustandes auch in der Nationalphonothek nicht digitalisiert werden und müssen erst noch restauriert werden. Weitere fünf Kassetten waren leer, davon eine mit Geräuschen, aber ohne wirklichen Inhalt. Dies erklärt Lücken in den sonst gemäss dem Prinzip des Numerus currens vergebenen Signaturen.

Neben den von Ruth Weiss gesammelten Tonaufnahmen wurde die Sammlung zudem mit Aufnahmen ergänzt, die während der intensiven Zusammenarbeit mit ihr zwischen 2009 und 2011 in den BAB entstanden sind. Dazu zählen Interviews, welche Melanie Boehi zur Erschliessung der Schriftgutsammlung mit ihr führte, aber auch Aufzeichnungen von Veranstaltungen, die mit Ruth Weiss in den BAB stattfanden.

Anmerkungen zum Findbuch

Das folgende Verzeichnis basiert auf dem elektronischen Katalog der Sammlung, der mittels der Datenbank FAUST erstellt wurde. Jeder Katalogeintrag bezieht sich auf eine einzelne Audiokassette respektive ein einzelnes Magnetband, jeweils bestehend aus ein bis zwei bespielten Seiten. Die Texte der von Ruth Weiss beschrifteten Kassettenhüllen und der Kassetten selber wurden in den Feldern „Label Notes“, „Cover Notes“ und „Title“ exakt wiedergegeben, auch wenn manchmal Inhalt und Beschriftung der Kassetten nicht miteinander korrespondieren. Details zum eigentlichen Aufnahmeinhalt wurden über das Feld „Content“ und zusätzlich über die inhaltlichen und geographischen Schlagworte erfasst („Subject Keywords“ und „Regions/Countries“). Personennamen beziehen sich sowohl auf sämtliche an den Aufnahmen beteiligten Gesprächspartner als auch auf im Inhalt erwähnte Personennamen. Der Index „Ort“ („Places“) führt, sofern bekannt, den Aufnahmeort sowie für den Inhalt relevante Orte auf. Körperschaften („Organisations“) beziehen sich ausschliesslich auf den Inhalt und werden nur da als Körperschaft aufgeführt, wo es in der Schlagwortliste keinen entsprechenden Deskriptor („Subject Keywords“) gibt. Die mit den FAUST-Einträgen verknüpften Tondateien sind im MP3-Format abgespeichert. Jede Datei bezieht sich auf den Inhalt einer bespielten Kassettenseite. Befinden sich mehrere unterschiedliche Aufnahmen auf einer Kassettenseite, wurden die Verweise dazu im Feld „Bemerkungen“ angegeben. Auch sämtliche zusätzliche Angaben zu den Tondokumenten befinden sich unter „Bemerkungen“ („Comments“).

I Introduction

This finding aid makes accessible the sound collection of German-South African journalist Ruth Weiss. Besides these audio holdings, the Ruth Weiss collection contains a very extensive archive of written documents that is already accessible via its own finding aid.⁵ It also contains a small store of around 300 photographs that may be researched by means of the BAB archive catalogue.⁶

Most of the recordings in the Ruth Weiss sound collection relate to southern Africa and were produced in the context of her work as a journalist. They emphasise the period of the 1970s and 1980s. During this time, Ruth Weiss conducted numerous interviews with representatives from economic and political circles as well as liberation movements in southern Africa. Her interviewees have included Kenneth Kaunda, Zambia's first president and a personal friend of hers; prominent South Africans such as Solly Smith, Oliver Tambo, and Trevor Huddleston; Zimbabwean politicians such as Robert Mugabe and Abel Muzorewa; as well as the South African writer Nadine Gordimer and German politician Marie Schlei of Germany's Social Democratic Party (SPD).

In addition to such prominent subjects, she also interviewed ordinary people about day-to-day life in southern Africa in the 1970s and 1980s. Aside from interviews, the collection also contains some audio recordings of press conferences, political events and independence celebrations, live music and readings. The recordings often served as the basis for newspaper and magazine articles as well as books and radio broadcasts by Ruth Weiss.⁷

From early on, Ruth Weiss was interested in the position of women in politics as well as in liberation and anti-apartheid movements. She interviewed activists and inquired about their political engagement, their visions for the future, their life in exile, or simply gave them room to share their story.

⁵ Boehi, Melanie Eva: *Registratur PA.43. Ruth Weiss. Apartheid and Exile, Politics and Business in Southern Africa: Partial Collection of the Journalist and Author Ruth Weiss (1924). Basel: Basler Afrika Bibliographien, 2012.

⁷ Examples of book projects for which Ruth Weiss recorded interviews on cassette include the following: Weiss, Ruth: The Women of Zimbabwe, London: Kesho, 1986 and Weiss, Ruth: Sir Garfield Todd and the Making of Zimbabwe. London [etc.]/ Basel: British Academic Press/ P. Schlettwein Publishing (PSP), 1999.

As a journalist, Ruth Weiss had the chance to attend several important conferences, such as the “Rhodesia Conference” (Geneva) in 1976 or the “Commonwealth Heads of Government Meetings“ in 1981, 1985 and 1987. She seized the opportunity to speak personally with participants and recorded the conversations on cassettes.

These interviews in notable settings – complete with background noises, interruptions, etc. – capture something distinct. Their impromptu qualities and, of course, the interviewees’ individual voices produce snapshots in time that otherwise prove elusive in print, giving listeners an entirely unique window into southern Africa in the 70s and 80s.

Ruth Weiss

Ruth Weiss (b. 1924) has enjoyed a distinguished career as a journalist covering southern Africa. After fleeing Nazi Germany with her Jewish family in 1936 and settling in Mayfair, a suburb of Johannesburg, she initially worked as an accountant and as an assistant in the insurance business and in publishing. In the 1950s, she published her first newspaper articles under her husband’s name, Hans Weiss. From 1960 onward, she worked full-time as an economics journalist, first in Johannesburg (Newscheck, Financial Mail) and then, beginning in 1966, in Salisbury (editorial board, Financial Mail). At the end of the 1960s, the Rhodesian government expelled her from the country because of her critical reporting. She was also blacklisted in South Africa until 1992. She eventually moved on to work in London (Guardian, Investors Chronicle), in Lusaka after 1971 (Times of Zambia, Financial Times) in Cologne after 1974 (Deutsche Welle), back in London after 1978 (Link-up Radio Services) and in Zimbabwe after 1981 (among others, for the Zimbabwe Institute for Southern Africa (ZISA)). In the 1990s, Ruth Weiss moved back to England and began devoting more time to belletristic writing. In this period, she published an autobiography, short stories, novels and more.⁸ In 2002, she moved to Lüdinghausen, Germany, where she continues to live and write.

⁸For a more detailed biography of Ruth Weiss, see: Boehi, Melanie Eva: Registratur PA.43. Ruth Weiss. Apartheid and Exile, Politics and Business in Southern Africa: Partial Collection of the Journalist and Author Ruth Weiss (*1924).

On the History of the Sound Collection

The “Ruth Weiss sound collection” listed in this finding aid represent only a small portion of the countless sound recordings captured and collected by Ruth Weiss in the course of her career as a journalist. In some cases, Ruth Weiss erased her own recordings when reusing tapes, other recordings were loaned to colleagues or radio stations and eventually ended up in other collections or were lost entirely. Some of the cassettes in the collection stem from the period in which Ruth Weiss worked with Link-up Radio Services. This radio project was founded by a loose coalition of journalists in London at the end of the 1970s. Their aim was to make audio recordings openly accessible to their colleagues in southern Africa. Likely as a result of this exchange, certain cassettes wound up in Ruth Weiss’ collection that were recorded by others, for example a 1979 interview by Gisela Albrecht of prominent writer Bessie Head.

Ruth Weiss donated about 180 tapes and cassettes to the Basler Afrika Bibliographien over the years, in addition to her text and photo collection. They were initially catalogued according to their written labels, as for conservatory reasons, they could not be listened to before digitisation.

In January 2012, the original recordings were transferred to the Swiss National Sound Archives for digitisation. This was made possible thanks to the generous financial support of Memoriav, a Swiss association committed to preserving and enabling access to Switzerland’s audio-visual heritage. As a result, in addition to the original recordings, there are now high-quality copies as WAV files, for long-term archiving, as well as working copies in MP3 format. Four cassettes were too degraded for the National Sound Archives to digitise them, so efforts must be made to restore them. Five other cassettes were blank – one contained audible noise but no real content. This explains the apparent gaps in the collection, as shelf-marks had been assigned prior to digitisation.

In addition to the audio recordings personally collected by Ruth Weiss, her collection has been augmented with recordings made in the course of an intensive collaboration between herself and the BAB from 2009 to 2011. These include interviews that Melanie Boehi conducted with her regarding the cataloguing of her written materials, as well as recordings of BAB events featuring Ruth Weiss.

Remarks on this Finding Aid

The following index is based on the collection's electronic catalogue, which was generated using the FAUST database. Every catalogue entry corresponds to an individual audiocassette or magnetic tape, consisting of one or two recorded sides. The texts written by Ruth Weiss on the cassette covers and the cassettes themselves were documented verbatim in the fields "Label Notes", "Cover Notes" and "Title", even in cases where a cassette's contents and its label were inconsistent. Details on the actual content of recordings were entered in the field "Content" and additionally documented via content-related and geographical keywords ("Subject Keywords" and "Regions/Countries"). Personal names found in the catalogue refer to all interview partners featured in the recordings as well as to individuals mentioned in the interviews themselves. The index "Places" indicates, whenever known, the location where a recording was made as well as places relevant to its content. "Organisations" solely refer to the contents of recordings and are only listed as such in cases where no other keyword descriptors ("Subject Keywords") apply. The audio files linked to the FAUST entries are saved in MP3 format. Each file represents the contents of one side of an audiocassette. In cases where one cassette side contained multiple recordings, the corresponding details were indicated in the "comments" field.
